27. [____] Termination of Probation: Probation has been ordered for a specific length of time; however, probation shall not be terminated until the court has both reviewed the performance of the probationer and has signed an order discharging the probationer. Defendant shall truthfully answer all questions posed during any polygraph test.

III. TERMINATION

The decision whether or not to recommend termination of Defendant from the Treatment Court program rests solely with the Treatment Court Judge, guided by input from Defendant, defense counsel, the prosecuting attorney, and other members of the Treatment Court Team. Upon the Court's recommendation for termination, Defendant is entitled to a due process hearing and, if requested, to have the hearing presided over by a judge other than the Treatment Court Judge. Upon discussion with counsel, Defendant may waive the due process hearing.

If Defendant is on probation, the due process hearing may be combined with the evidentiary and disposition hearing for the probation violation. Termination from Treatment Court will become effective upon the actual disposition of the probation violation. Until then, Defendant must comply with all conditions of the treatment court program and remain subject to sanctions.
